fr p akehurst provides the first english translation of the complete text of coutumes the customary law of clermont in the beauvais region as it was practiced and understood in the late thirteenth century the coutumes de beauvaisis provides a unique perspective on thirteenth century civil and criminal trials this work presents a thorough historicist account of the development of subjectivity in the medieval period as traced in medieval literature and historical documentation collections of local customary laws or coutumes played an important role in the development of modern french law and influenced legal development in the french colonies including louisiana this handsome bibliography of one of the finest collections in the world which contains seven color plates is the standard guide beginning with general collections it surveys coutumiers from the central western northern and eastern regions the final section compiles coutumes of written law regions pays de droit écrit such as bordeaux and toulouse the volume is rounded off with a useful collection of appendixes a glossary of geographic terms a list of french rulers and a list of holy roman emperors it also has an index of names an index of authors and compilers and an index of printers publishers and vendors in the last two decades research on spatial paradigms and practices has gained momentum across disciplines and vastly different periods including the field of medieval studies responding to this spatial turn in the humanities the essays collected here generate new ideas about how medieval space was defined constructed and practiced in europe particularly in france essays are grouped thematically and in three parts from specific sites through the broader shaping of territory by means of socially constructed networks to the larger geographical realm the resulting collection builds on existing scholarship but brings new insight situating medieval constructions of space in relation to contemporary conceptions of the subject in medieval europe the word fama denoted both talk what was commonly said about a person or event and an individual's ensuing reputation one's fama although talk by others was no doubt often feared it was also valued and even cultivated as a vehicle for shaping one's status people had to think about how to manage their fama which played an essential role in the medieval culture of appearances at the same time however institutions such as law courts and the church alarmed by the power of talk sought increasingly to regulate it christian moral discourse literary and visual representation juristic manuals and court records reflected concern about talk this book's authors consider how talk was created and entered into memory they address such topics as fama's relation to secular law and the preoccupations of the church its impact on women's lives and its capacity to shape the concept of literary authorship a new understanding of the transformative effect of vernacular writing on customary law in medieval france an examination of the remarkable parallel between robert kegan's theory of the evolving self and bernard lonergan's notion of the self transcending subject the framework for a new christian anthropology presented here is holistic and integral based in scriptural and traditional understanding of god as the source of human origin and the goal of human destiny
